Dear Grote:

The customary summer doldrums settled in sometime ago with a bang. I wish I could remember how those yesteryears with periods of relaxation in the summer worked.

I have your letter of June 30 and the word on Edgell. He sounds interesting and I have written to him as you suggested. Possibly it's more fun not to know a little bit about him other than your one-sentence description. If you think it's safe on that basis, fine and dandy. Otherwise, if you have a little time possibly you could fill in a little bit more to guide me when, as and if he responds and the Edgells descend on New York.

While, as you know, the idea of Bill and me getting down to see you hadn't gotten beyond the spark in the eye stage, the already existing congestion of the October calendar would have required the timing of it to be near the end of October at the very earliest. I am still hoping it will work out and am going to do everything in my power to make it whether or not Bill and I can do it jointly.

The radio work continues to sound interesting and challenging. It's interesting to hear how some of the older records become relevant to the activities. It's still going to take one or two of those feet-up sessions to satisfy my whetted curiosity.

Possibly you've already seen that Lindsay has moved from Green Bank to Arecibo.

Best wishes,

Chas
