Dear Schuyler:

Today I have sent the documents for sale of house, garage and land to Bert. I believe the outcome is the best that could be arranged. Certainly neither you nor I were in any position to undertake moving the house. This can only be done profitably by one in the business and only then if some cheap land is available such as Muehlfelt owns. I'm satisfied with the outcome.

It is unfortunate that this affair generated so much steam in Louisville. I would suggest that you take life easier. My observation has been that the great majority of things people worry about never come to pass and that most worry-warts keep dreaming up new ones when the old disappear. Don't get into this class, as it will shorten your life. When I return I want to see a bright energetic brother.

My experiments continue to be quite successful here. We are just finishing up enlarging my installation and the quality of the data should improve markedly. When I get some pictures taken of the valley in which I'm working I'll send a few to you. Please take time out to tell me what you are doing and send some pictures of your house. That is quite an imposing address.

Best regards,

Grote Reber
