Dear Grote:

I was glad to hear via a peek at your letter of October 26 to Jennie that you had negotiated your various travels successfully and gotten back to where spring is advancing.

Your various observations on assorted matters have been noted and Jennie advises me that she has followed your instructions in the two specific items on which something was necessary.

There is nothing of any special importance or excitement to report on matters hereabouts since your departure. I am glad to hear, however, that the ear continues to come along, although from your phrasing I am not sure but what you may miss your former situation when you could just tune the noise out with a twist of the wrist. Also glad to hear that your domestic situation straightened out all right and that the installation did not suffer any serious setbacks during your absence. We will be looking forward to word of operations.

In accordance with our discussion, arrangements have been made to deposit $12,000 to your account, and I trust that this will be executed more efficiently than on the last occasion.

Continuing best wishes,

Charles H. Schauer

P.S. I have heard of some very good markets for old gold in case you are accumulating too much of the kind of thing that the Pacific Society foisted off on you.
