Dear Grote:

It's been a long time since I have written you, as indeed I believe I note every time I do so. However, it has continued to be a complex life, and I can only hope that I have not risked any real values by the dilatoriness of much of my correspondence.

I am brought to writing this time by a letter from Bernard S. Finn at the Smithsonian, advising that despite the impressive catalogue of radio equipment they already have almost everything on your list. He suggests that the American Museum of Electricity in Schenectady or the Museum of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, which are just being developed, would be delighted to obtain your collection. I thought it would be well, however, to inquire as to your wishes in the matter before opening the way for a request from anyone other than the Smithsonian for a donation of your property.

I am sure you have given up on me entirely, especially in view of an optimistic note of mine possibly two or three months back that I might get down your way by September. The possibility still exists but is no more definitely predictable than it has been before.

Anyway, I'll await your instructions on this other possibility for exhibit of your collection of radio equipment and possibly make better sense when I write you next.

Continuing best wishes,

Chap

Charles H. Schauer
